DreamMaker Bath & Kitchen of Connecticut Recognized as Certified Lead Carpenter

WACO, Texas – (Jan. 10, 2008) – Three Connecticut DreamMaker Bath & Kitchen businesses recently completed training in the National Association of the Remodeling Industry’s (NARI) Certified Lead Carpenter program.

Stephen Shuttleworth, owner of DreamMaker Bath & Kitchen of Southeastern Connecticut, and carpenters Alan Schick and David Holtzworth were recognized along with Jim Bodner, owner of DreamMaker Bath & Kitchen of Danbury and carpenter Brain Hatch. Lead carpenters Larry Pericolosi and Don Engelhardt with DreamMaker Bath & Kitchen of Newington were recognized as well.

Certified Lead Carpenters (CLCs) oversee all aspects of a remodeling project including customer satisfaction, personnel management, administration and more. To qualify for the certification, applicants must have a minimum of five years continuous practice in the remodeling industry, successfully complete a half-day written examination and strictly adhere to NARI’s Standards of Practice and Code of Ethics.

“Each of these men are tremendous professionals,” said Doug Dwyer, president and owner of DreamMaker Bath & Kitchen. “Achieving the Certified Lead Carpenter designation exemplifies their drive to go above and beyond and provide quality craftsmanship and service to customers.”
